*Your Rate of Return for each individual asset above is not available.

Your Rate of Return in the Asset Details section above measures the investment performance of each of your individual assets. It incorporates the timing of your additions and withdrawals and reflects commissions and fees paid. Reviewing your Rate of Return is important to help ensure you're on track to achieving your financial goals.

The performance of your investments is tracked since they have been held in the current account, but no earlier than Jan. 1, 2009. Certain events, including a transfer of an investment between accounts, share class conversion, or change in an investment's identification code (CUSIP) caused by a corporate action, will impact the time frame over which the investment's rate of return is calculated.

Information used to calculate performance may have been obtained from third parties and Edward Jones cannot guarantee the accuracy of such information.

* Your approved credit is not a commitment to loan funds. It is based on the value of your investment account which could change daily. The amount you may be eligible to borrow may differ from your approved credit. Borrowing against securities has its risks and is not appropriate for everyone. If the value of your collateral declines, you may be required to deposit cash or additional securities, or the securities in your account may be sold to meet the margin call. A minimum account value is required if you have loan features on your account. Your interest will begin to accrue from the date of the loan and be charged to the account. Your interest rate will vary depending on the assets under care of your Edward Jones Pricing Group. Outlook 2019: Climbing a Rockier Road

As we enter 2019, the road ahead looks rockier, and you may be asking whether we've passed the peak. In our view, we're still climbing, but growth rates have peaked as the effects of one-time changes fade.

Continuing modest economic and earnings growth should support rising stock prices and the global bull market. Slower growth can make financial markets more sensitive to uncertainty and elevated political tensions, which increases market volatility. Although global growth has decelerated, we think market expectations have fallen faster, creating opportunities for investors.

To help address higher market volatility, we recommend rebalancing your portfolio and improving its diversification. Consider adding:

- Short- and intermediate-term investment-grade fixed-income investments to rebalance to the appropriate mix of stocks and bonds based on your comfort with risk and long-term goals. Check whether you have enough cash to cover short-term spending requirements.
- Small- and mid-cap U.S. stocks and large-cap stocks - The late 2018 pullback lowered valuations, and these stocks could benefit from solid earnings in 2019.
- International equity investments in developed and emerging markets - Political conflicts, slower economic growth and trade tensions have made investors pessimistic about international equities and reduced valuations, creating an attractive opportunity, especially if some of the growth and trade concerns are resolved more quickly than expected.

This cycle has been lengthy, and in our view, slower growth rates could help extend the later stages - they could last longer than many expect. Don't let a rockier road deter you from appropriate actions or darken your outlook.

Diversification does not guarantee a profit or protect against loss in declining markets. Investing in equities involves risks. The value of your shares will fluctuate, and you may lose principal. Small- and mid-cap stocks tend to be more volatile than large-company stocks. Specific risks are inherent in international and emerging-markets investing, including those related to currency fluctuations and foreign political and economic events. Before investing in bonds you should understand the risks involved, including credit risk and market risk. Bond investments are subject to interest rate risk such that when interest rates rise, the prices of bonds can decrease and you may lose principal value if the bond is sold prior to maturity.
